

Career Challenge

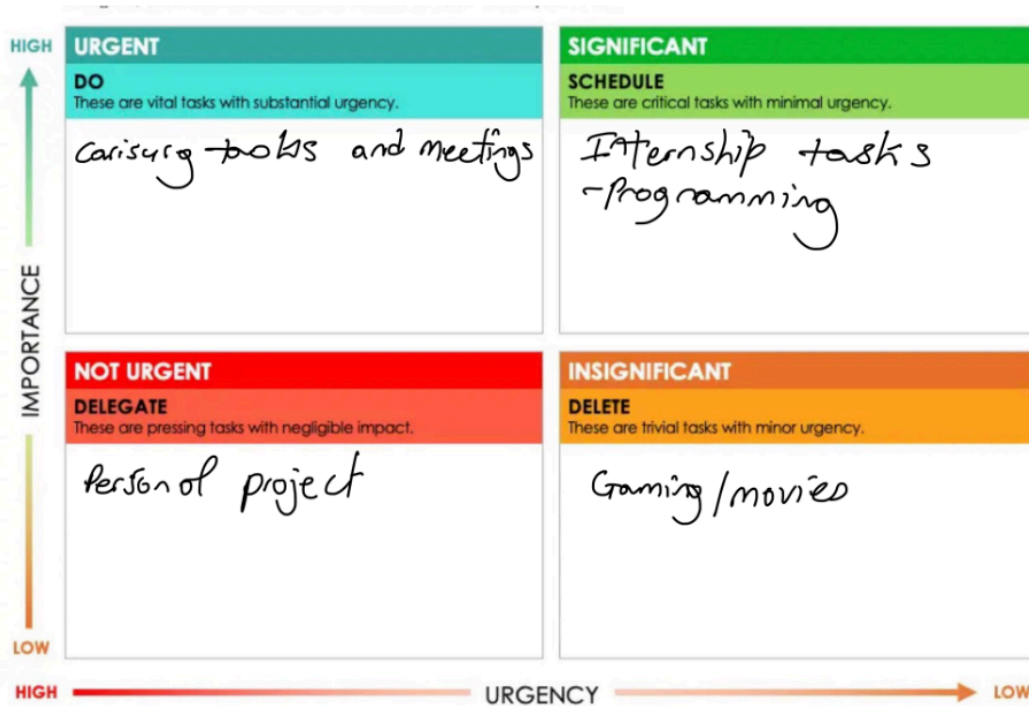

Audit your last two weeks - where did the time actually go?

Most of my time over the last two weeks went to personal projects, continuous learning, and certification preparation. But I also lost a surprising chunk to scrolling/social media.

12 weeks Schedule:

Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday
8 am to 12pm - carisurg	8 am to 12pm - carisurg	8 am to 12pm - carisurg	8 am to 12pm - carisurg	8 am to 12pm - carisurg
12pm to 5pm - Complete Deliverables	12pm to 5pm - Complete Deliverables	12pm to 5pm - Complete Deliverables	12pm to 5pm - Complete Deliverables	12pm to 5pm - Complete Deliverables
6pm to 8pm - Personal Project/Program ming	6pm to 8pm - Personal Project/Program ming	6pm to 8pm - Personal Project/Program ming	6pm to 8pm - Personal Project/Program ming 8pm to 9pm - Internship meeting (every two weeks)	6pm to 8pm - Personal Project/Program ming

Eisenhower Method

I pick the Eisenhower method because it transforms time management from a reactive race against deadlines into a strategic exercise in prioritization. Instead of simply ordering tasks by what feels most urgent, the method forces you to distinguish between what is truly important for my long-term goals and what is merely pressing in the moment. This clarity prevents me from getting lost in distractions. It also provides a straightforward rule for handling unexpected tasks (evaluate, then delegate, defer, or delete) so my schedule bends without breaking. In essence, I choose Eisenhower to stop being busy and start being effective.